3. BUSINESS ITEM

3.A 15-0256 Briefing on Downtown Transportation and Innovation

Ms. Buckler introduced the presenters for the transportation briefing. She discussed how transportation issues impact the community's vision for Downtown.

Ms. Black presented a history of 20th century transportation influences, especially highways, and outlined how those influences determine many of today's choices. She explained the Regional Urban Design Assistance Team (R/UDAT) process beginning in 1979 and gave historical background on transportation issues including the establishment of bike corridors in 1965.

Mr. Samdahl addressed public priorities results determined from the public outreach process. He discussed recent trends and described balanced planning tool components.

Mr. Hoey gave an overview of Downtown planning projects from a Public Works perspective. He discussed budget constraints and proposal strategies for increasing funding.

Mr. Bloom answered questions about Downtown transit and the possibility of extending 15 minute service into the late evening.

Discussion:

- Balance between using parking lots for infill and meeting parking requirements.
- Public sector investment strategy/return on investment possibilities.
- Critically important funding support for mass transit.
- Best ways to serve competing uses of public space.
- Redefine the purpose of downtown street system from moving cars to moving people between East/West/South areas.
- Impact of changing one way street environments.
- Capital Way paving and revitalization plans.
- Sounder service limits and increased Express bus service.
- Pilot project bicycle boulevard/corridor from Lyons Park to Sylvester Park.
- Outlining the need for multiple market rate housing projects.

4. PUBLIC COMMENT

Cary Retlin of 233 Rogers St. NW addressed the importance of taking risks necessary to do things differently and create new transportation strategies. He gave past examples including the Fourth Avenue bridge and encouraged Commissioners to be the visionaries and let Council and staff take care of the details.

Janine Unsoeld an Eastside resident and Board member of South Puget Environmental Clearing House (SPECH) discussed future SPECH community meetings.

Jenay Huber of 2612 Buker Street expressed her appreciation for tonight's topic and discussion, and encouraged the Commission to pursue possibilities for changing one way streets.
