What Olympia Values:

Olympians value the role parks, open space, recreation and art play in our lives; as these contribute to our sense of community, and to our physical, spiritual, emotional, environmental and economic well-being.

Our Vision for the Future:

A healthy, fun, welcoming, safe and enriching place to live for all Olympians.

Introduction

Olympia's great parks, vibrant arts community, and many recreation and enrichment programs ~~enrich~~ enhance our lives and strengthen our connection to the community. Public gathering places, whether a small pocket park or large playfield satisfy our need to join with others in the community. One only has to walk to a neighborhood park, search for a new skill to learn, or catch the latest downtown ~~Arts Walk event~~ such as Arts Walk to experience our welcoming community this. The City, community groups, volunteers, and businesses all play a vital role in shaping parks, arts, and recreation. These facilities, events and programs improve people's quality of life, promote active lifestyles, create a sense of place and contribute to the local economy. The City of Olympia takes an active role, when appropriate, in influencing regional health policy where it relates to Olympians.

Commented [SN5]: Public comment to not call out "Arts Walk" specifically.

Commented [SN6R5]: 1/5 public comment to add Arts Walk as an example of our welcoming community.

Parks, Arts and Recreation Programs and Facilities

Parks and recreation programs enrich the community by supporting a healthy well-balanced community, support healthy lives, and those healthy individuals and families help sustain a healthy community. City programs offer opportunities to exercise, learn a new skill, and connect with nature, reduce stress, as well as support personal growth and emotional well-being.

Some recreational amenities are regional in nature and a regional approach to their implementation can be effective. The~~As it developed this plan,~~ the City looks~~looked~~ at opportunities for coordinating with other local and regional governments to develop more parks and recreation~~recreational~~ facilities. For example, community parks lend themselves to a regional approach, particularly if a potential site is located near a border with Lacey, Tumwater, or Thurston County. Other regional efforts could include an Art Center, a expanding the regional trail network, recreational programming, an aquatics center, or even an urban agriculture park, ice skating rink or swimming pool. The City will continue to explore these opportunities.

Over the next 20 years, Olympia will face the following challenges in Parks, Arts and Recreation:

- Public Needs to Feel Safe and Secure in Parks and Facilities

While strategies enacted since the last plan have been effective in reducing the incidence of unsafe behavior in parks, facilities and services, there is still work to do to create a welcoming environment where all visitors feel safe and that they belong.

- Climate Change Impacts and Action

Climate change is impacting Olympia's parks and recreation activities. From sea level rise to frequent extreme weather events, we must mitigate these impacts and build a climate resilient parks system that will serve generations to come. As the City updates the Percival Landing Master Plan, design for sea level rise will be addressed. In 2022 the City's Urban Forestry Program hired a consultant to do an evaluation of tree canopy coverage for the entire City. This information will be used by parks to strategically and equitably maintain and enhance tree canopy coverage in parks throughout the City. The full evaluation and report can be found online olympiawa.gov/treecanopy

Equity, inclusion and belonging needs to be centered in parks, arts and recreation. We recognize our equity journey will present challenges and we commit to the responsibility to face these challenges while building the capacity and accountability resources to embed equity, inclusion and belonging in our daily practices and decision making. We will continually analyze the political, economic, sociodemographic, technological, legal, and environmental challenges facing our work. This requires continually developing solutions and strategies for the challenges. A staff committee focused on equity, inclusion and belonging work meets regularly to analyze the challenges and develop solutions.

Commented [SN16]: Added based on public comments of not knowing what the City is doing. Suggested by DEI manager.

Olympia and its community members have changed since 2014 when the last Comprehensive Plan was updated. From an increase in population, to taking climate actions, to a renewed focus and commitment towards equity. These changes have great significance to the programs and facilities that we will provide during this planning period. The following goals and policies apply to all parks, arts and recreation programs, and facilities and will help guide Olympia toward achieving its vision over the next 20 years.

Parks

There are 5352 parks and open spaces in the City of Olympia that give the community a variety of opportunities to enjoy the outdoors from hiking in Watershed Park, to keeping cool in the sprayground at Woodruff Heritage Park Fountain, to strolling along Percival Landing, to enjoying a reunion getting married in the Rose Garden at Squaxin Priest Point Park. Despite the number of parks we have, however, there are still unmet needs, such as soccer fields, neighborhood parks within a 10 minute walk of each resident, community dog parks, community gardens, bike and nature trails, and open space. The Parks and Recreation Plan:

Every six years, the City undertakes an extensive public outreach effort to update its Parks, Arts and Recreation PlanParks, Arts and Recreation Plan. During this time, community members have an opportunity to share what they want from our park system, and our arts and recreation needs, which are used to update Olympia's park level of service standards. These standards — such as the ratio of developed park land per 1,000 residents — along with an equity analysis, are used to evaluate and prioritize the need to acquire more park land or build more recreation facilities.

~~Athletic field~~ Percival Landing. Olympia has not developed space can range from a single field at a new community park in to a multiple field complex. Large athletic field complexes are the last 40 years. most cost effective for efficient scheduling and maintenance. Though they Athletic field complexes are designed for organized activities and sports, although individual and family activities are also encouraged. They can vary in size, but ideally are large enough to accommodate at least four fields and supporting Athletic field complexes bring large groups together and require more facilities (such as parking, restrooms and parking) which allows for tournament play, picnic shelters. Olympia's three existing developed athletic field complexes are: LBA Park, Yauger Park and Stevens Field. In 2018, the City purchased the 83-acre Yelm Highway Community Park site and is currently in the process of developing a master plan for the site with hopes of developing the first phase of the park in 2025. Combined, these parks total 75 acres.

Community parks add to Olympia's vitality (Percival Landing).

Olympia provides athletic fields through a combination of City parks and school fields. But there still is a need for additional rectangular fields. In recent years, soccer groups have been turned away and have used fields available in other jurisdictions. Some athletic fields have been so over-used that they cannot recover for the following season, which is leading to long-term deterioration. While the City will continue its efforts to acquire large parcels for future athletic field complexes, it recognizes that with very few large undeveloped parcels available, it may be necessary to meet the future athletic field need with single fields at multiple parks.

Community Parks can also ~~can~~ have special features such as off-leash dog areas, bicycle courses, freshwater swim beaches, waterfront access and community gardens. Based on community needs, Olympia will also need to add additional Community Park acreage to provide for these desired recreational amenities. For organized sports, it matters less where the player lives, but rather where a game is scheduled. ~~Much like a transit system or library system that is "area-wide", Community Parks serve the entire Olympia urban growth area. Olympia is ~~now home to an engaged population of approximately 2,500 individual artists and almost 100 arts organizations active in music, literary, performance, media and venues. Our resident artists are musicians, writers, actors, and visual arts artists who are both nationally known and emerging. Olympia offers hosts award-winning theater, ground-breaking music performances from indie to symphony, the Procession of the Species, and a strong visual, literary and performing arts community that ranges from emerging informal artists to those with nationwide gallery representation. Both the Olympia Arts and Events program and the Olympia Arts Commission, a nine-member advisory board appointed by the City Council, have worked on behalf of the arts in our community for over 30 years. Because there are no other municipal Arts Commissions in neighboring jurisdictions, the City's programs benefit the arts regionally, while serving as a model for communities throughout Washington State.~~

With the recent voter approved initiative, Inspire Olympia, a portion of Olympia's sales tax is collected and utilized to contract with local non-profit organizations offering arts, sciences, heritage and cultural programs and experiences for the public in the City and Olympia School District. Inspire Olympia provides a reliable source of public funding that sustains a healthy, visible, welcoming and inclusive nonprofit cultural and science sector, making creative cultural experiences accessible for everyone in Olympia.

Arts Walk is a beloved one of the largest public events in the community event in Olympia, and a source of civic spirit and pride.

Over the next 20 years, Olympia will face two challenges:

- Developing~~Creating~~ an Arts Center. In 1989, the City first identified a need for a regional arts center with exhibition space, working studios, and rehearsal space for regional artists. In 2021 the City of Olympia took ownership of the Olympia Armory building for the purpose of creating a community arts center. While funds have been identified to support the initial visioning, the City will likely need to debt service and fundraise a significant portion of the first phase of construction needed to make the building safe and accessible to the public.

- Retaining Artists. Social and economic factors such as cost of living, affordable housing, and stable economy may make it harder for Olympia to retain its artists.

The Armory building will soon be an arts center that supports diverse artists equitably.

Recreation

The City’s recreation programs promote physical and mental well-being, bring community members together in a positive, supportive, and fun atmosphere, while creating and create memorable experiences for individuals and families. The City offers traditional programs such as sports leagues, youth camps and clinics, and special interest classes. The City does adapt it also responds to emerging recreational needs, and it is also important for other providers to supplement recreational opportunities interests, such as one department cannot realistically or sustainably meet the entire Ultimate Frisbee league, high energy dance classes, and community demand gardens.

Each year, approximately 400 teams participate in City sports leagues, more than 4,9500 community members take a leisure recreation class, and more than 14,5000 youth participate in camp programs. Recreation Programs foster community health and wellness ("Kids Love Soccer" Program).

Olympia's recreation programs face the following challenges:

- Activating our Community. Our ~~sedentary~~ lifestyles are contributing to health problems. The City must find places and programs that people can easily access to become active, connect with fellow community members and encourage healthy lifestyles. can compete with the ease and simplicity of TV and computers for our time and attention
- Connecting with Nature. Our ~~electronic toys and indoor jobs have created a~~ culture is less connected to nature today than it was 20 years ago. If our residents are not connected to nature, it will become increasingly difficult for them to understand or embrace environmental stewardship.
- An aging population that's ready for action: Between 2024 and 2035, Olympia's senior population is projected to nearly double. But the seniors of the future are likely to be more active and adventurous than in prior generations. Olympia's recreation programs need to embrace this trend.

Commented [SN49]: Staff Feedback:
Both of these read as kind of judge-y to me. I'd suggest removing the language about technology altogether and instead saying something like:

Activating our Community: adults and children are less active now than they have been in the past, due to changes in our lifestyles. Making activity an easy thing to integrate into daily life is harder than it has been in the past.

Connecting to Nature: our culture is less connected to nature than it has been in the past. Connecting to the outdoors helps people understand and embrace the value of our natural surroundings.
